Overview and Intended Audience

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that more than 1.2 million people are living with HIV in the United States. One in eight (13%) of those people living with HIV is unaware of their infection.

Despite increases in the total number of people living with HIV in the US in recent years, the annual number of new HIV infections has remained relatively stable. However, new infections continue at far too high a level, with an estimated 50,000 Americans becoming infected with HIV each year. Pennsylvania is ranked seventh in the nation, with 31,400 Pennsylvanians living with HIV/AIDS.

Significant health disparities are evidenced in HIV infected individuals in this country. African Americans represent 46% of new HIV infections but only 12% of the population; Latinos represent 20% of new HIV infections, and 16 % of our population.

Advances in the treatment of HIV/AIDS have extended the lives of many. AIDS is now considered a chronic disease. There is convincing evidence that if we can diagnose and treat all persons with HIV in the United States, we could dramatically slow the growth of new HIV cases to near zero. The annual World AIDS Day conference provides an overview of timely clinical and psychosocial issues related to the care of persons living with HIV/ AIDS. This conference has been developed with the input of physicians and other health professionals, as well as consumers and prior attendees, through conference evaluations. It is intended for physicians, psychologists, registered nurses, licensed practical nurses, pharmacists, social workers, health educators, peers and all individuals interested in learning more about HIV/AIDS. This is a knowledge- based activity.

Objectives

- Describe the latest updates in HIV medical care and available HIV medications.
- Understand the appropriate use of PrEP (Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis).
- Learn the objectives of the National HIV Strategy: reducing new infections, improving health outcomes, and reducing health disparities.
- Recognize the intersection of HIV infection and Intravenous drug use and substance use, and the local and national opiate overdose epidemic.
- Be aware of "AIDS Free Pittsburgh", a new local initiative to significantly reduce new HIV infections in our community by 2020.
